2006 TTPA description

Many people contact the Bureau of Business Research seeking information on various phases of Texas business. This directory of Texas trade and professional associations was compiled to help answer those requests. For the purposes of this listing, a trade association is defined as a voluntary organization of business enterprises engaged in a particular trade or industry and dealing with the problems of that industry. Regional, statewide, and national associations that have their headquarters in Texas are listed.

The entries are alphabetized under the name of the association. A city index, as well as a subject index, is included in this publication. Each association is assigned one or more subjects and is listed under each subject.

The 2006 edition includes website and email addresses for those associations that maintain a website on the Internet. The information for the majority of the associations was extracted from the organization's website. Information for a small number of associations was extracted from an affiliated association's website.

Publication titles and frequency of publication are also included, if information regarding them was available on the association's website.

The information in this edition of TTPA was collected during the spring of 2006. To confirm the accuracy of the information, go to the website for the association to find a list of the current officers, e-mail and mailing addresses.
